

Amor Boubakri

Associate professor in public law at the University of Sousse in Tunisia, where he has been teaching constitutional law, political regimes and human rights for many years. He was a member of the Commission of Political Reforms and Democratic Transition, in 2011, that paved the way for the first phase of the democratic transition process in Tunisia. He also has professional experience as electoral expert and legal advisor with UNDP and other international organisations in different countries. He has published several studies and researches on the democratic transition, elections, and human rights, mainly in Arab region, and has contributed to many regional and international conferences on the same topics.

Politics

Transparency

Campaign

Vote

Digital

Democracy

Integrity

Elections

Institutions

Citizenship

Technology

#9ForoDemocracia